13. Living conditions (Crow Canyon is located on a 170-acre rural campus. If you choose to live on campus, you will stay in primitive cabins, with no heat, air-conditioning, water, or electricity. Weather conditions are variable and include temperature extremes. A composting toilet is available adjacent to the cabins, and a modern shower and restroom building is located a short distance away. Meals are served in a communal dining hall. Briefly discuss how well you would adapt to these conditions.)

14. Field, laboratory, and classroom conditions (Archaeological research and education at Crow Canyon involves exposure to insects, dust, intense sunlight, and temperature extremes; hiking, carrying heavy objects [weighing as much as 40 pounds], and other forms of physical exertion; and concentrating and communicating in noisy environments. Briefly discuss how well you would adapt to these conditions.)
